Emphasizes not immediately calling for help when a person expresses suicidal thoughts. Members shared experience ‘sitting with’ individuals expressing suicidal thoughts and the power

DMH Leadership Update: Dr. Kelley Klein Overview of Role of the DMH Medical Director and Q&A	Dr. Klein shared an overview of her background. She has been in the current position at DMH since February 2022. She gave a recap of polypharmacy- that it is person-dependent. The goal, and what DMH monitors through both the chart review and agency designation process, is that clients and providers are aware of the impacts of multiple medications for the individual they are being prescribed to. When a pattern is found of over-prescribing by one agency or provider, DMH is issuing corrective action. Dr. Klein’s perspective on psychiatric medications is that they are one tool of many in achieving wellness for an individual and are not the right solution for every person. The field of psychiatry has gone through phases more and less focused on medication, current residency training emphasizes more than just medication. The American Psychiatric Association does still require individuals to be given a diagnosis as part of treatment. Part of this is for billing purposes, but it also gives a common language and allows for education and research into practices. It’s not a perfect system, like the DSM itself. The Medical Director’s role in oversight of Electro-Convulsive Therapy (ECT) is to lend the Medical perspective to the established DMH quality team processes. This includes annual reviews of the three hospitals that currently provide this service- their policies, data, procedures, and observation of it being provided, with the consent of the client. Reports from these processes are public records [Eva to confirm]. Dr. Klein’s perspective on the cause of mental health challenges is that it is always multi-faceted. There is often a combination of 1)biological, 2)psychological, 3) social, and 4) cultural complexities that influence a person’s experience of the world and overall health and wellness. Trauma can be considered part of the social contributor, but also makes physical changes to the brain. For example, some people are born with less serotonin, which may contribute to depression, but lower levels of serotonin alone would not automatically create a mental health challenge when other aspects of a person’s body and life are well. There was a discussion of how DMH is trying to increase accuracy of information regarding race/ethnicity, sexual orientation, gender identity so that outcomes of these specialized populations can be better understood. Dr. Klein cautions committee members that most studies on the effect of medication are specific to one medication. Any study that aims to generalize about the impact of all medications on the population, such as lifespan, would be suspect. She agrees we need more research on psychiatric medications overall.

Committee Member Response to Leadership Update	Committee members shared: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • There need to be more proactive services for clients, beyond a focus on medication • There need to be more research on the long term effects of Lithium
Home and Community Based Services (HCBS) Assurances	[input slides] This is related, indirectly, to Conflict Free Case Management. These measures relate to all Designated and Specialized Services Agencies. The measures will be worked into current quality processes, but this forces a more regular look (quality processes are every four years currently, this will be annual). DMH is sensitive to the reporting burden already put on DAs/SSAs, and are trying to create systems to collect this data without additional reporting burden for agencies.
